WORDS OF ADVICE FOR COACHES

Risk is a natural part of life and therefore a part of many sports. There is always a risk of injury when participating in sports. Because of this risk of injury there is also a risk of a lawsuit. The lawsuit in many cases will have to be proven on an unintentional tort (negligence) against you or the club. If so, in order to prove that negligence occurred, the injured party must establish three facts:

- damages were sustained
- duty relationship existed between the parties
- the conduct of the negligent party was below an acceptable standard of care

Here in Canada we do have a defence in sport called the "Volenti Doctrine". The courts have recognized and understand that in any sport there are risks, which are "obvious", i.e. "foreseeable" and "necessary". In other words, the risk of minor injury or injury is both foreseeable and necessary if one is to learn the sport. The risk of receiving blows to the body are both foreseeable and necessary to boxing, football, soccer, rugby, hockey or any other bodily contact sports if one is to accomplish the end result of the sport.

Nevertheless, in the case of an accident or injury you must understand and conduct yourself in the standard of care required by the situation. Therefore if your participant is injured, then:

- secure proper medical attention immediately
- if injury is serious, notify or transport individual to the nearest hospital
- make sure you have coaches/participants data sheet
- notify parents and follow-up on condition

The Last Word:

Since Williams v. Eady (1893), the legal precedent was set that an individual (coach) owed a duty to act as the "careful parent of a large family", a concept adopted almost universally since then to present day.

The ruling was, "Once a youngster had become hurt, would not a prudent father want to know how and why his child had become hurt in order to avoid the same kind of risk to another child? I think he would have."

Therefore, as a coach it is paramount that supervision of activities under your control are directly related to the complexity of the training session at hand. The rule of thumb is how much supervision would you give, if it were your child?

Your answer to this question should dictate your actions.
